Sometimes the second issue is harder

I've been publishing newspapers and magazines for a long time, including launching several different publications through the years in Nevada and Arizona.

And one thing is certain after all these times.

The second issue is actually tougher to do than the first one.

Why?

Simple math.

When you decide to launch a monthly publication, it takes a few months to get everything going. You have to determine the area you want to target, sell enough ads to make sure you can pay for it all and at the same time come up with some interesting articles and other features that your will draw reader interest.

This process can easily take a few months before you send the first issue to the printer and then get it out for distribution.

Then you have to do it all over again. But this time, you don't have a few months to get another issue out.

You only have a few weeks.

So, the math says you have two months less time to get the second issue done.

First thing to do was come up with a cover story. I had already done some research on the Somerset Academy - Skye Canyon campus and noticed that principal Kate Lackey has been the driving force at the school since it opened seven years ago.

I dropped by the school to drop off some papers there and introduced myself. Principal Lackey was there and graciously gave me a few minutes to pitch the article.

She agreed and I arranged for writer Dave Berns to interview her and for Ben Robertson to provide photography.

Second, I received a number of emails from various people in the community after they had picked up the first issue. Those tips led to a feature on Nurse Cheri and the services offered at her business, Revitalize Wellness.

I also went to the Centennial Hills Library, again to drop off papers, and made a connection with the library staff about getting calendar entries.

The library has a full monthly schedule of great events, both for adults and children. If you find yourself with an open schedule, I highly recommend checking out the offerings there.

Get to know Somerset Skye Canyon principal

By Dave Berns

The Somerset Academy's Skye Canyon Campus, 8151 North Shaumber Road, continues to build its climate and culture at the 7-year-old northwest Las Vegas campus.

Principal Kate Lackey says it's her "first priority" and "It's the hardest part of the job," Lackey says. "My first priority is to get to know every staff member, get to know about their hobbies, their families, their likes, their dislikes and just get to know them on a personal level so we can start building that trust."

We recently visited the campus, where we spoke with Lackey and Instructional Coach Ami Keeter about the challenges of establishing a young charter school in the competitive Las Vegas K-12 market.

Question: What's it like to establish a culture in a new school?

Lackey: I'm a very transparent person so I'll start sharing personal things with my staff to make those connections. My goal every year is to keep that culture going and to keep it positive and family oriented. We say "family first here," and we consider ourselves a family.

Question: What are we not getting about the state of education in this country?

Lackey: Trust the educators. We are the professionals and would like parents to work in partnership with us to help educate their child.

Question: Much of the population seems to think, "I could teach. I could be an educator." Is that a challenge?

Lackey: It is. There are a lot of really good educators out there. Unfortunately, COVID burned a lot of people out. It was detrimental to all. We have phenomenal educators at this school. They work extremely hard. There's a lot of bureaucratic stuff that they have to do on top of teaching. If I could take that away from them I would, and we try to clear a path for them some of the time.

Question: What sort of stuff are you talking about?

Lackey: State reporting, documenting special education accommodations, which are the accommodations teachers have to give to their students when they're in their general education classrooms, documenting interventions, provided to learners for ELA and mathematics. There is documentation in general. There are initiatives like "Read By Grade Three" in the State of Nevada, which require additional actions and documentation. Teachers have to write and implement an action plan on how

Skye Canyon nurse provides cutting edge IV therapy

By Kirk Kern

Skye Canyon resident Cheri Dangoy Niemiec has been a registered nurse for more than 20 years, primarily working in an oncology unit.

But last year, however, she and a couple partners branched out to open Revitalize Wellness, with a mission to uplift the health of the community through a combination of preventive strategies and compassionate care.

They opened in May of 2023 at 8440 W. Lake Mead Blvd.

Revitalize Wellness offers a number of services, but it is one of the few in the Las Vegas Valley that administers IV Ozone Therapy.

This cutting-edge therapy is known as Major Autohemotherapy (MAH). MAH is a safe and effective form of ozone therapy that harnesses the power of ozone gas (O<sub>3</sub>) to support a patient's overall well-being.

"IV Ozone Therapy has been beneficial for many of our patients who have a variety of health issues, from Lyme Disease to different autoimmune issues/ chronic and acute illnesses," Nurse Cheri said. "Patients also do IV Ozone Therapy to prevent sickness and boost their health and wellness."

Nurse Cheri said she had recent patient who had been diagnosed with stage 4 breast cancer that had metastasized to her bones. Although she was described as high spirited, Nurse Cheri said she felt as if she was left to die, especially after losing all her hair right after an especially strong chemo treatment.

"She lost hope and fell into deep depression," said Nurse Cheri. "A friend from Hawaii told her to do Ozone Therapy and referred her to us, Revitalize Wellness."

"Since then, she continues to improve, both with her tumor markers/blood lab values and her strength/energy."

The patient is currently on a cancer treatment plan, but adds IV Ozone Therapy along with it. Nurse Cheri said the patient believes that while the cancer treatments are killing the cancer, the IV Ozone Treatments are helping strengthen her immune system so she can heal quicker and fight the cancer more effectively.

"I have seen her thrive. You would never have known she is fighting cancer," Nurse Cheri said.

Besides IV Ozone Therapy, Revitalize Wellness offers Semaglutide weight loss programs, custom IV drips, High Dose Vitamin C infusions, NAD+ infusions, acute care consults and massage therapy.

"I have been an RN for almost 20 years," Nurse Cheri said. "I have had the privilege of taking care of so many patients and their families during this time. I have laughed and cried with my patients, especially during the last five years that I was an oncology RN. I realized that the most important thing that many patients need during their personal journey back to health is HOPE."

"I believe that our clinic offers an alternative way to harness that hope and get you back to what you most desire: health and wholeness, for both you and for those you love."

Revitalize Wellness also provides mobile services for regular vitamin IV services.

Nurse Cheri's partners in this venture are Kimberly Barnett and Falcia Stock.

Nurse Cheri moved to Skye Canyon in 2020 because of the unobtrusive views, the fresh air and the quietness compared to other areas of Las Vegas.

"I love that the desert is so easily accessible and so I hike with my dogs frequently," she said. "I also like the convenience of all the shopping in the area and the small-town feel although Skye Canyon has grown tremendously!"

It is scheduled at 7 p.m. at Las Vegas Harley Davidson, 5191 S. Las Vegas Blvd. Tickets start at $35.

This year marks Valentine's continued dedication to the cause, having been involved with the organization for nearly six years as a current board member and yes you heard me right an actual competitor.

Valentine, a native Las Vegas, loves his community that he shares with his fiance Christina Gruber, a CPA who is also heavily involved in the boards fundraising efforts.

Valentine has helped raise over $50,000 through his personal efforts and contributions through a loyal following, has played a major role in fundraising and supporting the event's mission to assist veterans transitioning back into civilian life. The organization as a whole has raised over $600,000 since inception.

Valentine is no stranger to high-level competition. He is a former world champion and multiple time Jiu Jitsu National Champion. Valentine will enter the ring once again to face longtime friend and fellow competitor and fellow blackbelt Ian Blanding. Their previous match in 2019, which ended in a dramatic draw, promises to fuel an exciting rematch.

they are going to get a child to read by grade three. All of that is best practice, but the documentation piece gets a bit cumbersome. Our teachers are doing what they need to do, which is what's best for kids every day, but you add that paperwork piece and that can be a little overwhelming.

Question: In light of all that, if you could fix anything about K-12, what would you do?

Lackey: Allow for autonomy in schools, as we have here. Give the principals and their teams the autonomy that's best for their demographics and give them the ability to choose the curriculum that will help them succeed. I think that's the biggest thing because curriculum doesn't drive instruction, but it certainly helps get you there.

Question: You say "give them." You're trying to set them up for success.

Lackey: You don't want to handcuff administrators. Trust that they know what is best for their school. My board fully supports the decisions I make on my campus. There are certainly things I need to go to them about and get their permission for, such as big initiatives, especially when it involves money, but they're very supportive.

Question: Have you worked in public schools?

Lackey: No, I came from a private school.

Question: So, you don't have that public school culture to compare it to?

Lackey: No, I worked in private. I really consider this charter world, coming from 20 years as an educator and administrator in private schools has really helped me in this position because I feel like it's a hybrid of both worlds. We're publicly funded. We do have to report to the Nevada Department of Education and the State Public Charter School Authority, both whom oversee us. But at the end of the day I have the autonomy you would in a private school to run the ship. The biggest battle is just having supportive families trust what we're doing is the right thing. I know it doesn't happen at every school. So, I understand the skepticism at times, but overall we are doing what's best for kids. We work hard to take every child under our wing.

Question: What other tools do we need in a post-COVID era to help students succeed in a post-pandemic world?

Lackey: That's a tough question. They need time.

Lackey's colleague Ami Keeter briefly joins the conversation to note that teachers need time to receive some of the professional development that they need but wasn't available during the pandemic.

"This whole thing after COVID is going to be a process," Keeter said. "It's not going to be fixed overnight."
